

Work and Play. How many activities or signs of work can you count in this village scene? Prehistoric peoples had a lot of work to do if they wanted to eat and have a place to sleep at night. (Hint: they needed tools for hunting and cooking; they needed to gather and prepare foods, make clothes, and almost always keep fires going for cooking and warmth.) Drawing by Peggy Maceo.